Doughnut shop robber on the loose

Police are looking for an armed suspect who robbed a Dunkin' Donuts near Broad and Allegheny. The suspect allegedly entered the store just after midnight and handed the cashier a threatening note before he pulled a gun and demanded money. The suspect took $150 and fled south on Broad Street. No one was injured. METRO

Fate of priests

Archbishop Charles Chaput is expected to discuss the fate of 23 suspended priests at a news conference Friday, officials said. The priests were suspended after a February 2011 grand jury indictment accused them of sexual abuse. Hundreds of priests reportedly met privately with church officials last night, but no announcement has been made. METRO

Council considers other tax proposals

As an alternative property tax bill sponsored by Councilman Mark Squilla moves through City Council, members met yesterday to discuss compromises introduced by the Nutter administration that would soften the impact of the proposed Actual Value Initiative.

"We would like to work with Council to try to develop measures that lessen the impact of changes, particularly on longtime owner occupants who have seen significant increases in the values of properties in their neighborhoods," Finance Director Rob Dubow testified.

He also voiced opposition for Squilla's bill, which would delay AVI's implementation for another year, during which the property tax system would remain the same.

"The city would face the enormous risk of thousands of appeals based on the state board ruling that the system is inaccurate, and potential losses of real estate tax in many tens of millions of dollars," Dubow said. METRO/AW

CAMBRIA COUNTY. Two Muslim men have filed a federal lawsuit against the Pennsylvania Department of Corrections after they say a prison strip search in front of female staff violated their religious beliefs, The Tribune-Democrat of Johnstown reported.

Creating a school lunch that kids can brag about

- Restaurateur Marc Vetri's program uses fresh food and a healthy menu
- Lunch initiative could become a template for other local institutions

RIKARD LARMA/METRO

▶ Vetri chats up two young critics at People for People.

Local restaurateur Marc Vetri's new school lunch initiative is getting good reviews and could soon be expanded.

Earlier this year, Vetri, the proprietor of Osteria, Vetri, and Amis, took over management of the school lunch program at the People for People Charter School on North Broad Street. The initiative replaces the cafeteria line with family-style service where an adult sits at each table, and a young table captain, wearing a special chef's smock, brings the food to each table. Before each meal, the chef announces the menu.

"Many studies show that there are many positive benefits from sitting together at mealtime. Lunch is now part of the curriculum. It is not free time," said Vetri, who was named "Best Chef Mid-Atlantic" by the James Beard Foundation.

Chef Tia McDonald and three other staff members from the Vetri Family Foundation arrive at 6:30 a.m. to prepare the food. Andre C. Williams, director of operations for the school, boasted about yesterday's menu of beef lasagna, which was made with three cheeses, tomato sauce, and ground beef, green salad with carrots, handmade pear crisp, and skim or 1 percent milk.

"We used to have rectangular tables with benches, platters, plastic plates and silverware, and food made from frozen food," Williams said. "Now we have tables, chairs, real silverware, and fresh food except for the tomatoes in the lasagna. Much of the food is handmade. When we have steak and brisket, the students go home and brag about it to their parents."

He believes the change in the menu fosters better behavior in the classroom after lunch, a typically rowdy time during the school day.

Perhaps, there is no better indicator of the success of the program than the vote of confidence given by the students.

Tymier, 9, said, "I feel like I am eating in a restaurant."

Shuaib, 8, said, "We have no more nasty ingredients."

More schools to come?

PHILADELPHIA. The national discussion on school lunches, childhood obesity, and a request for help in planning menus by the founder of the ESF Dream Camps Michael Rouse was a catalyst for the creation of the Eatiquette program by Vetri and his partner Jeff Benjamin.

"After we took over the lunches at the ESF Dream Camps, the number of children misbehaving kids after lunch dropped from an average of 20 to two or three," said Vetri. "The success of our camp experiment convinces us to expand the program to schools."

Vetri is in talks with the city to expand the program to other city schools, although nothing is definite.

"Our options are limitless," Vetri said. "We want to be onsite at other schools. While we can't make lunch at every school, we can go in and teach them our menus and our program." METRO

Teen held in fatal hit-and-run

PHILADELPHIA. A 19-year-old man charged in the fatal hit-and-run of a Rock School of Dance student was held for trial on murder and other charges yesterday following a preliminary hearing.

Deandre Barnes is accused of driving through a red light near Broad and Washington on March 18 and striking Polina Kadiyska, 22, before ramming into parked cars. According to police, Barnes initially fled, but was arrested when he and a passenger went back to the vehicle to retrieve something.

Two witnesses yesterday testified they saw Barnes driving the green Audi police say struck Kadiyska. A municipal judge ordered Barnes to stand trial. His next court date is scheduled for May 23. METRO

Police standoff ends with three arrests

"You go in a place, you think you safe and you ain't. You can't even stay in your house these days." MCCLENDON

RIKARD LARMA/METRO

▶ Police were still on Ogden Street hours after the arrests.

Three men were arrested early yesterday morning after a robbery turned into a hostage situation in the Belmont section of West Philadelphia.

Police said the standoff occurred when a passer-by called in a robbery at Hong Heng Chinese Restaurant and Takeout on the 4200 block of Ogden Street around midnight. The caller reportedly saw the store's lowered metal gate and heard cries. A man, his wife and their daughter, about 11 years old, were inside, according to neighbors.

Officers responding to the scene also heard crying inside the store, declared it a barricade situation and called in SWAT. After three hours of negotiations, authorities arrested three men and recovered two handguns. The hostages suffered no major injuries.

Neighbor T.J. McClendon, who lives across the street, said that he heard the commotion through the night. "I stayed in the house and watched the helicopter overhead," he said. "I don't want to get involved with cops and things too much. I'm too old — I'm in my 80s."

He said that police instructed residents to stay inside during the incident. "One of my daughters came out and they told her she better get back in the house," he said.

The scene was still taped off late yesterday afternoon. An officer on the scene said that investigators believed a third weapon was inside.

McClendon, who frequents the takeout restaurant, complained that similar crimes plague the neighborhood and the city. "You go in a place, you think you safe and you ain't," he said. "No matter where you live, people come out of other places and do dirt. You can't even stay in your house these days."

Metro area among worst in air quality

The Philadelphia metro area was ranked among the worst in the country for air pollution, according to an annual report from the American Lung Association.

The State of the Air 2012 report looks at particle pollution, known as soot, and harmful ozone pollution, known as smog, for 277 metropolitan areas in the United States. Philadelphia ranked 16th worst for ozone and 10th worst for annual particle pollution.

"Philadelphia has had problems with air pollution for years, but in order to be one of America's greatest cities we need to take action across the region to reduce dangerous air pollution," William Kramer, of the Sierra Club, an environmentalist group said in a statement.

The region's ranking has improved since 2000, but still poses problems for asthma sufferers, according to the report. METRO

PHILADELPHIA. After praising us in past months for our culture and parks system, Travel and Leisure magazine rated Philadelphia International Airport the third-worst among the nation's 22 largest airports, saying it is "hobbled by outdated infrastructure, overcrowding, chronic delays, and demoralized staff."

Readers rated PHL the 20th worst out of 22 airports in the areas of staff, design and cleanliness (or lack thereof). Only its efficiency was ranked worse, clocking in at 21 for flight delays.

New York's LaGuardia Airport was ranked the worst and LAX in Los Angeles came in second. METRO/AW

Will China keep its pledge to protect dissident Chen?

Chen Guangcheng has left the protection of the US embassy amid promises to remain safe while living with family But within hours, reports that he fears for his life paint new picture

Blind Chinese dissident Chen Guangcheng left the U.S. Embassy in Beijing on Wednesday after securing guarantees that he could live in safety with his family in China — but he appeared to quickly have second thoughts.

Under a deal described by U.S. officials, China committed to allow Chen to relocate within the country along with his family and study at a university, an outcome that would have kept him a pivotal figure in China-U.S. relations.

However, within hours of his release to a Beijing hospital and reunion with his wife, Chen gave interviews saying he feared for his life after he learned of the way his wife had been treated — and that he now wants to leave the country.

"He wants to leave and he wants to leave as soon as possible," a CNN reporter said on air, saying he had spoken to Chen for 15 to 20 minutes by telephone and that the activist, who opposed forced abortions in China, felt "let down" by the United States.

Earlier, U.S. officials and Chinese officials said Chen left the embassy of his own free will after days of negotiations between the two governments. U.S. officials said that Chen wanted to remain in China and that he never asked for asylum.

Chen's dramatic escape from house arrest and his flight to the U.S. Embassy have already made him a symbol of resistance to China's shackles on dissent, and the deal struck by Washington and Beijing to have him remain in China would ensure he stays a test case of how tight or loose those restrictions remain.

China angrily accused the United States of meddling and demanded an apology for the way U.S. diplomats handled the case. REUTERS

Suicide bombers kill seven after Obama leaves Afghan capital

KABUL. Suicide bombers attacked a compound housing Westerners in Kabul on Wednesday hours after U.S. President Barack Obama signed a security pact during a short visit to a city that remains vulnerable to a resilient insurgency.

The Taliban claimed responsibility for the attack — which involved a car bomb and insurgents disguised as women on the eastern outskirts of the capital — killing seven people, a Gurkha guard and six passersby. It wounded 17 others.

The Taliban said it was in response to Obama's visit and to the strategic partnership deal he signed with Afghan President Hamid Karzai, a pact that sets out a long-term U.S. role. REUTERS

Earth to gays: GOP doesn't want you

Metropolitik

BRAYDEN SIMMS

POLITICAL WORLDLINESS FOR AN IMPOLITE WORLD

@METROPOLITIK

For complaints, suggestions and digital attaboys, e-mail us at brayden.simms@metro.us.

In case it wasn't already glaringly obvious, the Mitt Romney campaign for presidency has gone ahead and clarified an essential truth of modern U.S. politics: Gays are not welcome in the Republican party.

Hey, don't shoot the messenger! We draw this conclusion only after Romney bowed to far-right anti-gay pressure, allowing staffer Ric Grenell to become another casualty in Mitt's by-any-means-necessary warpath to the White House.

Continuing a trend, the malleable Romney was for Ric Grenell before he was against him. He did, after all, hire the openly gay former Bush staffer as his spokesman on foreign policy and national security — a first for a Republican candidate. But following push back from the far right, Grenell was left to wither on the vine.

Grenell resigned from Team Romney on Tuesday after a month of neglect, during which he was not deployed to comment on relevant issues — like the president's anti-Romney Osama ad. Romney spent that month not commenting on attacks by hateful conservatives over Grenell's gay credentials. (He lost a battle for official recognition of his same-sex partner in the U.N.'s Blue Book Rolodex.)

Never mind that foreign policy has nothing to do with gay rights: The Romneys muzzled Grenell on a conference call last week. Grenell organized the call, as was his job, but was ordered to stay silent.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Mitt Romney: He'd love for you to work for him — unless, of course, your sexual preference becomes a political liability.

"My ability to speak clearly and forcefully on the issues has been greatly diminished by the hyper-partisan discussion of personal issues that sometimes comes from a presidential campaign," Grenell told Washington Post writer Jen Rubin.

Grenell continued: "I want to thank Governor Romney for his belief in me and my abilities and his clear message to me that being openly gay was a non-issue for him and his team."

Perhaps it's true that Romney did believe in the strictly conservative yet gay Grenell. If so, it's clear that Romney's beliefs weren't strong enough to stand up to the likes of hate-preacher Bryan Fischer — who, upon hearing of the hire, pounced on Romney's weakness with so-called true conservatives.

"It appears to be a dog-whistle to the homosexual lobby," Fischer said, "a way of saying to them 'I'm with you, not with them.'" He took it even further: "It's certainly not possible that there are no other potential spokesmen available, men who are experts in foreign policy and who, at the same time, honor the institution of natural marriage in their personal lives."

The implications here are sickening. What Fischer asserts above, and what he was, through Romney's need of his coalition, rewarded for, is this line of thinking: In the Republican party, why hire someone who happens to be gay when you can hire someone who isn't? It's a bigot's version of labor law: What, are there no able-bodied straights? The only universe in which these people would consider hiring a gay person is one where he or she is the last available option.

Now Fischer's gloating. "I was kind of pleasantly surprised," he said. "I think Governor Romney is going to be far more careful now."

Just to be clear, Fischer was not alone. In his Washington Update, Tony Perkins argued that because Romney hired a gay man, it undermines Republican leadership. (Apparently Republicans have officially come out against gays?) Dan Gainor at the Media Research Center says the fact that Romney would hire Grenell at all is a clear sign he's not truly conservative. (All conservatives must loathe gays?)

Perhaps not all Republicans think this way. But with Romney so willing to kowtow, what difference does it make? The message is the same: Go work for someone else.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Lovato and Cyrus vie for last 'X Factor' seat

GETTY IMAGES

With Britney Spears reportedly set to fill one of the empty judges' panel seats on "The X Factor," it's a starlet face-off for the final slot, since former judges Paula Abdul and Nicole Scherzinger were kicked off the show after its first season. And according to conflicting reports, it looks like it's down to two former Disney stars. Celebuzz.com reports that executive Simon Cowell has been considering Miley Cyrus for the spot, while The Hollywood Reporter insists that Demi Lovato is close to a deal — and even in the "final negotiations" of securing the job.

I know this sounds, well, crazy, but if the job is to decide who has authentic talent on a national television show, shouldn't it be filled by someone who actually writes her own music and isn't auto-tuned within an inch of her life?

▶ Is it Demi versus Miley for the remaining "X Factor" seat?

Readers respond to Maxwell Drew

Yesterday, I asked what you thought of Jessica Simpson naming her daughter Maxwell Drew, and the reader consensus is that it's too masculine. Here's a smidgen of your thoughts:

"Sorry, reminds of the pig in the Geico commercials (his name is Maxwell also) and Drew Carey. Way too masculine for a little girl." - Lourdes

"I love the name Maxwell Drew! I mean, if it were for a boy. I like the idea of naming girls with boy names like Kyle and Ryan, but Maxwell is a too manly name in my opinion. I hope she goes by Drew when she gets older." - Libna

"Maxwell Drew is not a name for a girl. Maxine would have been better." - Lynne

"It's a dreadful name for a girl. It's as bad as Harper Seven, Blue Ivy Carter, Apple, etc. I guess I'm a traditionalist!" - Sylvia

"What do I think of the name Maxwell Drew? Well, I am old (52) so two things come to my mind: Coffee and Drew Barrymore!" - Gracie

Talking points

Kutcher brings in the big bucks

With a new deal reportedly in place, Ashton Kutcher will be returning for another season of "Two and a Half Men," according to Deadline. For next year's run — the popular sitcom's 10th season — Kutcher will reportedly bring in $700,000 per episode, with co-star John Cryer making slightly less than Kutcher and young Angus T. Jones earning $300,000 per episode. Each actor signed a one-year contract, sparking speculation that the 10th season could be the show's last.

Beckham has her mom moments

Even famous mother of four Victoria Beckham has her not-so-great parenting moments, like the time she left to take eldest son Brooklyn to school — but forgot the kid all together. "I jump in my Range Rover, put the car seat in, put my iPod on — obviously very important — and I drive to school. And then I realize I'd left Brooklyn in the kitchen," Beckham tells Vanity Fair. "I was driving along, talking away, and all the sudden, I looked at the front seat, and I was like, 'S—! S—! I've forgot something!'"

▶ Witherspoon's bump

Witherspoon flaunts her bump

While she hasn't yet made an official announcement about her pregnancy, Reese Witherspoon is doing little to hide the obvious. The Oscar-winning actress was spotted out and about in her L.A. neighborhood this week in a thin, clingy purple dress, according to Radar Online. And this past weekend, Witherspoon and husband Jim Toth turned heads at the White Hour Correspondents' Dinner in a tight top that accentuated her growing bump.

Cowell: As humble as ever

Simon Cowell may not have wanted to keep Cheryl Cole on the U.S. edition of "The X Factor," but he's more than happy to take credit for the success she's had in the U.K. "Even though we went through that pretty horrible period, I could look Cheryl in the eye and say what I did for her in those two years propelled her into a different league," Cowell tells GQ, admitting that while the debacle with the U.S. show may have created some distance between them, he'd still be open to working together again.

Lower Dens on bringing in new members and singer Jana Hunter on retreating from the solo artist spotlight

When interviewing Lower Dens in Austin, Texas, last month, the band's "Nootropics," which came out Tuesday, had not leaked yet. This reporter asked them to describe the sound of their sophomore album as if they were talking to a parent.

"Well, Dad, I'm going to do what I want. You might not understand it, but a lot of people out there think that it's good," jokes bassist Geoff Graham before considering the question more seriously. "The new album is different from the first one, obviously, we have five people now and we have a lot of different instruments and we use the studio in a new way. I think all in all, it has expanded. ... That's been one good word to use, expansion."

Expansion is a good word to use with Lower Dens. Although singer Jana Hunter already had a number of releases in her own name, a few years ago the chemistry with her touring lineup began to feel like a band.

"I was never really comfortable as a solo artist," says Hunter. "I realized that I had a lot more fun playing with other people and thought that it might extend to writing as well, and it has."

The writing process was new on "Nootropics," too. Last year as they toured behind their debut, "Twin-Hand Movement," they made demos of new songs in their van.

"In the van, with the advent of portable recording," says Hunter, "a lot of the skeletal elements of the songs were written."

'Brains' trust

Technology is a theme that pops up more than once on "Nootropics." Hunter says that the lead single, "Brains" is about artificial intelligence.

"We have a lot of long car rides to talk about this kind of thing or sit silently and think about it," says Hunter. "Geoff and I wrote the lyrics to 'Brains.' ... It worked really well because it's such a universal thing."

10 Ways to avenge the box office

Must-see

'The Avengers'

1 It's all about this comic-book septuple threat this weekend. Sci-fi master-in-chief Joss Whedon directs a bevy of big stars in this tale of Iron Man, Thor, the Hulk, Captain America, Nick Fury, Black Widow and Hawkeye joining forces to conquer the evil Loki.

COURTESY OF WALT DISNEY STUDIOS MOTION PICTURES

2 'The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel'
Every famous British actor and actress over 60 (save Michael Caine) makes an appearance in this film about retirees who travel to Jaipur, India, to live out their golden years.

3 'The Five-Year Engagement'
Jason Segel and Emily Blunt star in this Judd Apatow-produced comedy as a happily engaged couple who dodge one obstacle after another to get to their wedding day.

4 'Safe'
Never one to appear in a film and not handle some kind of firearm, Jason Statham stars as an ex-cage fighter attempting to save a young girl from the Russian mob.

5 'The Raven'
John Cusack is Edgar Allan Poe on the trail of a serial killer who designs his murders after Poe's stories.

6 'The Pirates! Band of Misfits'
The studio responsible for "Chicken Run" delivers a pirating adventure voiced by Hugh Grant and Salma Hayek.

7 'Think Like a Man'
Steve Harvey's best-selling book, "Act Like a Lady, Think Like a Man," gets a screen adaptation.

8 'The Lucky One'
Zac Efron plays an Iraqi war vet in search of a woman whose photo was a good luck charm during combat.

9 'To the Arctic'
Meryl Streep narrates this nature documentary about a polar bear and her two cubs making their way through the Arctic wilderness.

10 'The Cabin in the Woods'
This critically praised and long-awaited Joss Whedon horror film features a bunch of teenagers who go camping in said cabin in said woods.

What not to do in online dating

So you think you've mastered the art of romance on the Internet? Make sure you haven't made any of these classic Web-flirting mistakes before hitting send

Quoted:

"You're not approaching someone in person, so there isn't that immediate rejection, which makes people a lot bolder and makes them say things they would not say face to face."
OUISER BOUDREAUX

As many of us have learned, online dating is a very different animal from meeting a prospective date in person. Rather than a "come hither" stare from across the bar, it's that first e-mail that can make or break your chances of romance. Many of us fall flat on our faces when it comes to this first entree.

That's why a writer under the assumed name of Ouiser Boudreaux decided to create The A(n)nals of Online Dating — a site in which readers can post the worst online dating emails they've received to have them scored and critiqued by Boudreaux.

"You're not approaching someone in person, so there isn't that immediate rejection, which makes people a lot bolder and makes them say things they would not say face to face," Boudreaux explains of the epidemic of awkward emails. "Another part of the problem is that it's a bunch of people who are lonely and drunk at 3 a.m. and sending out messages."

CREATAS

▶ Check out Annalsofonlinedating.com to read embarrassing online dating e-mails.

Through the course of her work, Boudreaux has identified a few gaffes that repeatedly crop up in the submissions she gets. She outlined the worst offenses for us.

People who complain about dating

"Mostly [it's men who] complain 'all women are shallow b—es. None of them like nice guys like me. They all want to date a—holes,'" she explains. "If you're putting that on your online dating profile, it's no mystery as to why nobody wants to date you. You seem like a miserable, angry, crotchety man."

People who use tips from the old VH1 show, "The Pickup Artist"

"These dudes have tactics they use to pick up women in bars and they try to translate those tactics online," Boudreaux says. "One of the tactics is to go up to a woman and say something that's vaguely insulting, which doesn't really work as well on the Internet. You just kind of sound like a dick. They call it 'negging.'"

People who think racial fetishes are flattering

"I get a lot of racial fetishizing submissions — especially from Asian women who get [notes] from white guys saying 'I would love to know an Asian woman. I just love exotic Asian beauty," Boudreaux laments. "Nothing about their personalities or interests or anything, just, 'Oh, I see that you're Asian. Let's meet.'"

Occupy back in the news, but why?

RE: "OWS COMEBACK": Why does your paper glorify the Occupy Wall Street movement? It costs cities millions of tax dollars to keep police on overtime to watch OWS rallies. The money could be used to pay for AIDS victims, keep libraries open and provide shelter for homeless people. The Occupy movement pretends to be in favor of the "99 percent" yet all they accomplish is to drain cities of money that could provide vital services for residents.
LEW RITTER, VIA E-MAIL

I find it hard to believe Joshua Tordoff's prediction that the least productive people would do even less than usual on May 1. For example, right now I have no job to stay home from, but at least I'm not destructive like self-styled "job creator" Mitt Romney. My last employer went under through no fault of mine, whereas he, as head of Bain Capital, bought companies and bled many of them to death. ALAN BROWN, VIA E-MAIL

If as you say that "Communism has nothing to do with the Occupy movement," then why were there so many signs promoting communism on May Day? I saw a woman with a T-shirt that said "Break the Chains of Capitalism." I told her that communism plus socialism have more chains! If you are unaware of the evil of communism, go out and talk to the Russians (and Jewish people) who risked their lives escaping it. Go to Miami and speak to Cubans who escaped from Castro's regime. Look at North Korea, and what the Red Chinese have done to the Tibetans. Communism is not a catchphrase. It is a real evil. I am really amazed that so many of you Occupy people are ignorant of this.
FRANK GIALLOMBARD, VIA E-MAIL

Go ahead, continue playing off the 1 percent versus 99 percent — otherwise known as class warfare. It is in essence government confiscation of wealth via taxation from the haves to the have nots. Sooner or later, the producers of wealth will be outnumbered by the takers. Those who create wealth and income will eventually go on strike demanding that they be able to keep more of what they earned. The infamous 1 percent already contribute 40 percent of all taxes paid, while 46 percent pay no taxes yet are heavily dependent upon entitlement programs. Wall Street is the financial engine that drives our economy.

Uniform for cheers? What a disgrace!

RE: "SOMETHING I'LL NEVER FORGET": My name is Corporal Gary Grant and I served in multiple combat tours in Iraq as a U.S. Infantry Marine. I read your article in yesterday's edition of the Metro, and I felt it necessary to voice my opinion. This article validates people who are not in service taking credit for the sacrifice so many have made who actually have served. It is sickening that these false heroes actually received cheers for being in a phony uniform that they deliberately put on for that reason. I have never sought out praise nor has anyone I have served with that has actually done something worth receiving it. Merchant marines are not one of the branches of the military.
GARY GRANT, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Be careful about unthinkingly getting involved in a complicated project before you truly know all the facts. It behooves you to thoroughly check things out.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. If you're unable to do so yourself, it might be wise to have somebody you trust keep an eye on your spending. This isn't likely to be one of your better days for managing funds.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. The only way you're going to be productive is to make a schedule and stick to it. Tasks or projects that you leave until the last minute aren't likely to get accomplished.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. You have great self-discipline when you choose to exercise it, and it behooves you to do so when it comes to certain things you know you should not eat or drink. Don't overindulge.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Be on your toes when it comes to someone in your social group who is looking for another to pay his or her way. If you're not careful, she or he is likely to take advantage of your generous nature.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Because you're usually the one who is a step ahead of everybody else, you might let your guard down. The moment you do, however, someone will shoot out in front of you.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. You're usually smart enough not to believe everything you hear, but you could easily be snookered based on some colorful information that is the product of another's vivid imagination.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Be mindful of the risks involved if you find yourself tempted to impulsively make a financial investment on something just because it sounds intriguing. Check it out first.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. You'll be much more popular if you take the emphasis off of your own desires and make an effort to go along with what others want. Be a joiner.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Although our hunches can sometimes provide us with things our logic overlooks, don't think this is the case for you just because you want it to be true. Use common sense.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Think carefully before involving yourself in a joint venture being formed for either a commercial or social purpose. Know what you're getting yourself into.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If some kind of an agreement you made hasn't lived up to what you expected, get in touch with the others involved to see if they feel the same way. Make whatever adjustments you can. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Flyers head back to drawing board

Players cite lack of effort, desperation Promise to play full 60 minutes Praise stellar play of Bryzgalov

The Flyers know what needs to be fixed. They didn't play with desperation. They stood around watching, instead of moving their feet. They didn't get (any?) pucks on net.

All those things must change if the Orange and Black expect to escape New Jersey and retake the series lead.

"We got away from our game plan," Eric Wellwood said. "We didn't have the jump in the second and third periods. Next game, we're going to have to play a full 60."

The Flyers endured a painfully woeful second period, where the Devils spent almost 18 minutes in the Flyers' zone. They didn't register their first shot on goal until the 1:27 mark of the period.

"It's tough to score from our zone," Jaromir Jagr said.

As bad as Game 2 looked — and everyone in the locker room agreed it was ugly — there was one bright spot: the play of Ilya Bryzgalov. The on-again, off-again goaltender made 31 saves despite being under siege all night.

"Bryz was the only one who really showed up," Danny Briere said. "We didn't deserve to be up after two periods."

Jagr agreed.

"He was unbelievable," Jagr said. "If he wouldn't be in the net and didn't make those saves, it would be a different story. We would be down a lot. He kept us in the game, gave us a chance to win. We just had nothing."

League lays smack down on Vilma

On the same day the NFL mourned the loss of Junior Seau, commish Roger Goodell came down hard on four Saints players involve in the team's cash-for-hits bounty system.

The biggest hit was on stud linebacker Jonathan Vilma. Goodell suspended him without pay for the entire 2012 season.

"I never set out to intentionally hurt any player and never enticed any teammate to intentionally hurt another player," Vilma said. Three other Saints were disciplined, including Anthony Hargrove (suspended eight games), Will Smith (four games) and Scott Fujita (three games.)

Bucs honor Rutgers star

Tampa Bay signed former Rutgers DT Eric LeGrand yesterday to a symbolic contract. LeGrand saw his career end on Oct. 16, 2010, when he suffered a spinal cord injury.

Tragedy strikes NFL: Seau takes own life

Former Chargers linebacker found dead in beachfront home Police investigating as suicide Seau reportedly shot himself in the chest

Junior Seau died of a gunshot wound yesterday after shooting himself in the chest. He was 43.

Seau's body was found inside a bedroom in his beachfront house in Oceanside, Calif. Police are investigating it as a suicide, although there did not appear to be a note.

"All of us are deeply saddened about Junior Seau, a great player loved by teammates who also worked hard to serve his community," NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell said. "Junior and his family will remain in our thoughts."

Seau, who spent 13 seasons with the San Diego Chargers, is considered one of the NFL's greatest linebackers. He racked up 1,524 tackles, 56.5 and 18 interceptions during his 20-year career. He also played for the Dolphins and Patriots before retiring after the 2009 season.

"Everyone at the Chargers is in complete shock and disbelief right now," the Chargers said in a statement. "We ask everyone to stop what they're doing and send their prayers to Junior and his family."

Seau reportedly sent text messages saying, "Love you," to his ex-wife and children prior to his death. In 2010, he survived a brush with death after his SUV plunged 100 feet down a seaside cliff.

Seau, best remembered for his time in San Diego, was found dead inside a bedroom yesterday after shooting himself.

Bowl curse?

Seau is the eighth member from the 1994-95 Chargers' Super Bowl team to pass away. All were 44 or younger. Here is the list with causes of death:

- LB David Griggs died in a drunken-driving accident five months after the Super Bowl.
- RB Rodney Culver and his wife died in a plane crash back in 1996.
- In 1998, LB Doug Miller was struck by lightning (twice!) while camping and died.
- C Chris Whitley died in his trailer in 2008 from an apparent drug overdose.
- Also in '08, DE Chris Mims, at 456 pounds, passed away due to an enlarged heart.
- DT Shawn Lee recently went into cardiac arrest and fell victim to diabetes.
- Last week, LB Lew Bush died due to a heart attack. He had struggled with his weight.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

PUBLISHERS NOTE
All real estate advertising herein is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 and state and local fair housing laws. The Fair Housing Act makes its illegal to advertise any preference, limitations or discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin or an intention to make any such preference, limitation or discrimination. State or local laws may make unlawful advertising that discriminates on the basis of age, marital status, or sexual orientation. Metro US will not knowingly accept any advertising for real estate which violates the law. The law requires that all dwellings advertised are available on an equal opportunity basis. If you have any questions regarding housing discrimination, call the Long Island Housing Services at 1(800) 660-6920 in Long Island or the Anti-Discrimination Center at (212) 346-7600 in New York City. To file a complaint call HUD toll-free at (800) 669-9777 or the New York City Commission on Human Rights at (212) 306-7500
